Some Pay Rolls and Commissions on Labor Procured by Contractors.

The plague bills published today are chiefly payrolls and bills for commissions on labor procured. The Government blank on which these bills are made out, provides a place for the signing of the name of the "Government officer directly incurring the expense." In many cases the names of individuals not personally responsible are signed in this space. According to the bill the Government officer directly incurring the expense certifies to the receiving of the goods in good condition. The system of signing is indefinite and it is almost impossible to ascertain from the bills who is directly responsible for them. In publishing the plague bills, however, the names appearing in that portion of the bill-blank above described will be printed.

In William Horton's bill of $425, for two miles for excavator service, it is not stated whether the miles were hited out or sold to the Board of Health.

There has been some talk on the part of several of those, whose bills have been published in the Advertiser, on account of the bills of certain "other persons" not being published also. It has been explained that the plague bills are being given to the public in the order filed in the Department of the Interior, until the bills are reached they necessarily cannot be printed.

Today the seventh installment of plague bills appears below:
